

Giant and Yankee Players Split World's Series Money and Prepare for Barnstorming Trips

McGraw Regulars to Get $4,400 And the Hugmen $2,800 Each

Eighteen Members of the World's Champions Will Come in for Full Shares, While the Losers Will Cut Their Melon Into Twenty-six Slices

By John Kieran

The Polo Grounds was deserted yesterday. Not even the familiar figure of Henry Fabian decorated the landscape. Where the embattled athletes had kicked up the dust in the cataclysmic struggle that sent the Yankees whirling to defeat and the Clan McGraw to the heights of fame the dirt had died, the dust had settled, and the only sign of activity was the lazy drifting of a few torn newspapers across the uninhabited regions where the autumn breezes ran the bases all alone.

Behind the centerfield bleachers there was a buzz of conversation where the Yankee and Giant players were dodging in and out of the clubhouse, clearing out the lockers, arguing over mislaid sweater shirts and decrepit spiked shoes. Arthur Nehf steamed into port behind a rolling smoke of rage, furnished by a thick, long and wicked looking black cigar. Cozy Doan, Johnnie Rawlings, Bancroft and the other regulars on the roster of the St. Louis Browns were not there, but the perturbed expressions that a hard winter was approaching and coal retailing at a dollar a lump. Why should they be discouraged with a little matter of about $4,400 standing between them and the yawning door of the nearest poorhouse?

That is approximately the amount that each regular member of the world's champions will receive for knocking Messrs. Ruppert and Huston's upright young men into a horizontal position. Arthur Nehf was a little anxious-stricken about taking the money. Not that he didn't deserve his share for the two victories (one with the assistance of Ryan) he threw into the McGraw market basket, but his idea was that it was entirely a matter of pleasure to him. The portside argued that most people have to pay for their fun, even when they sometimes fail to get it. Beating the Yankees was the most enjoyable thing he had done this season. He felt that he should pay somebody something or having had this pleasure, so he is going to take his money when he gets the check from the Commission, and give it all away to Mrs. Nehf.

Dividing the Swag

Eighteen of those athletes who were familiar figures to Polo Ground fans came in for full shares of the money. The other seven players were split up, with something here for Henry Fabian, a little there for the trainer, and appropriate sums for McGuire, MacPhee, Blume and the other young members of the McGraw School of Applied Baseball Science.

The Yankees divided their melon into twenty-six slices. Every regular on the club drew a full share. This took care of the McGraw regulars, including Frank Roth and Charlie O'Leary. There were twenty-five athletes on this list, and their purpose for playing at Jackson's opposition was to win the World Series. The Giants will be over $2,800. A lot of indigent guests would take a worse licking for half the money. The extra share was divided between Mack Roth, the Yankees secretary for foreign affairs, Phil Schenck, the formerly groundskeeper, who recently fell heir to a new park; Doc Woods, the chiropractor, trainer, and Eddie Bennett, who had been brought to Boston in the dead of winter. The McGraw regulars, including Fabian, Schenck and Roth received $500 each. Eddie Bennett will have $300 to spend on lollipops this winter, and the odd man left over, amounting to more than $100, was voted to Mack Roth.

There was much speculation outside the Yankee family as to the fate of Chick Fawcett, Elmer Miller and Johnnie Mitchell, who were brought to Boston in the dead of winter. The McGraw regulars, including Fabian, Schenck and Roth received $500 each. Eddie Bennett will have $300 to spend on lollipops this winter, and the odd man left over, amounting to more than $100, was voted to Mack Roth.

Most of the players on both teams were getting ready to return to their homes. The McGraw regulars, including Fabian, Schenck and Roth received $500 each. Eddie Bennett will have $300 to spend on lollipops this winter, and the odd man left over, amounting to more than $100, was voted to Mack Roth.

Altkrook Wants to Pitch

Roy Bill Ryan and Dave Bancroft have joined Jack Hayden's aggregation and will play ball for the next season with Hank Gowdy, Bill Southworth and Horace Ford, of the Braves. Nick Altkrook has also signed to play with this team. Nick wants to do the pitching when they start their campaign around. Ryan will do the hurling and will be called upon to face the Bacharach Giants on Saturday and Sunday at Harrison, N. J. They will tour New York and Pennsylvania as long as they can secure games.

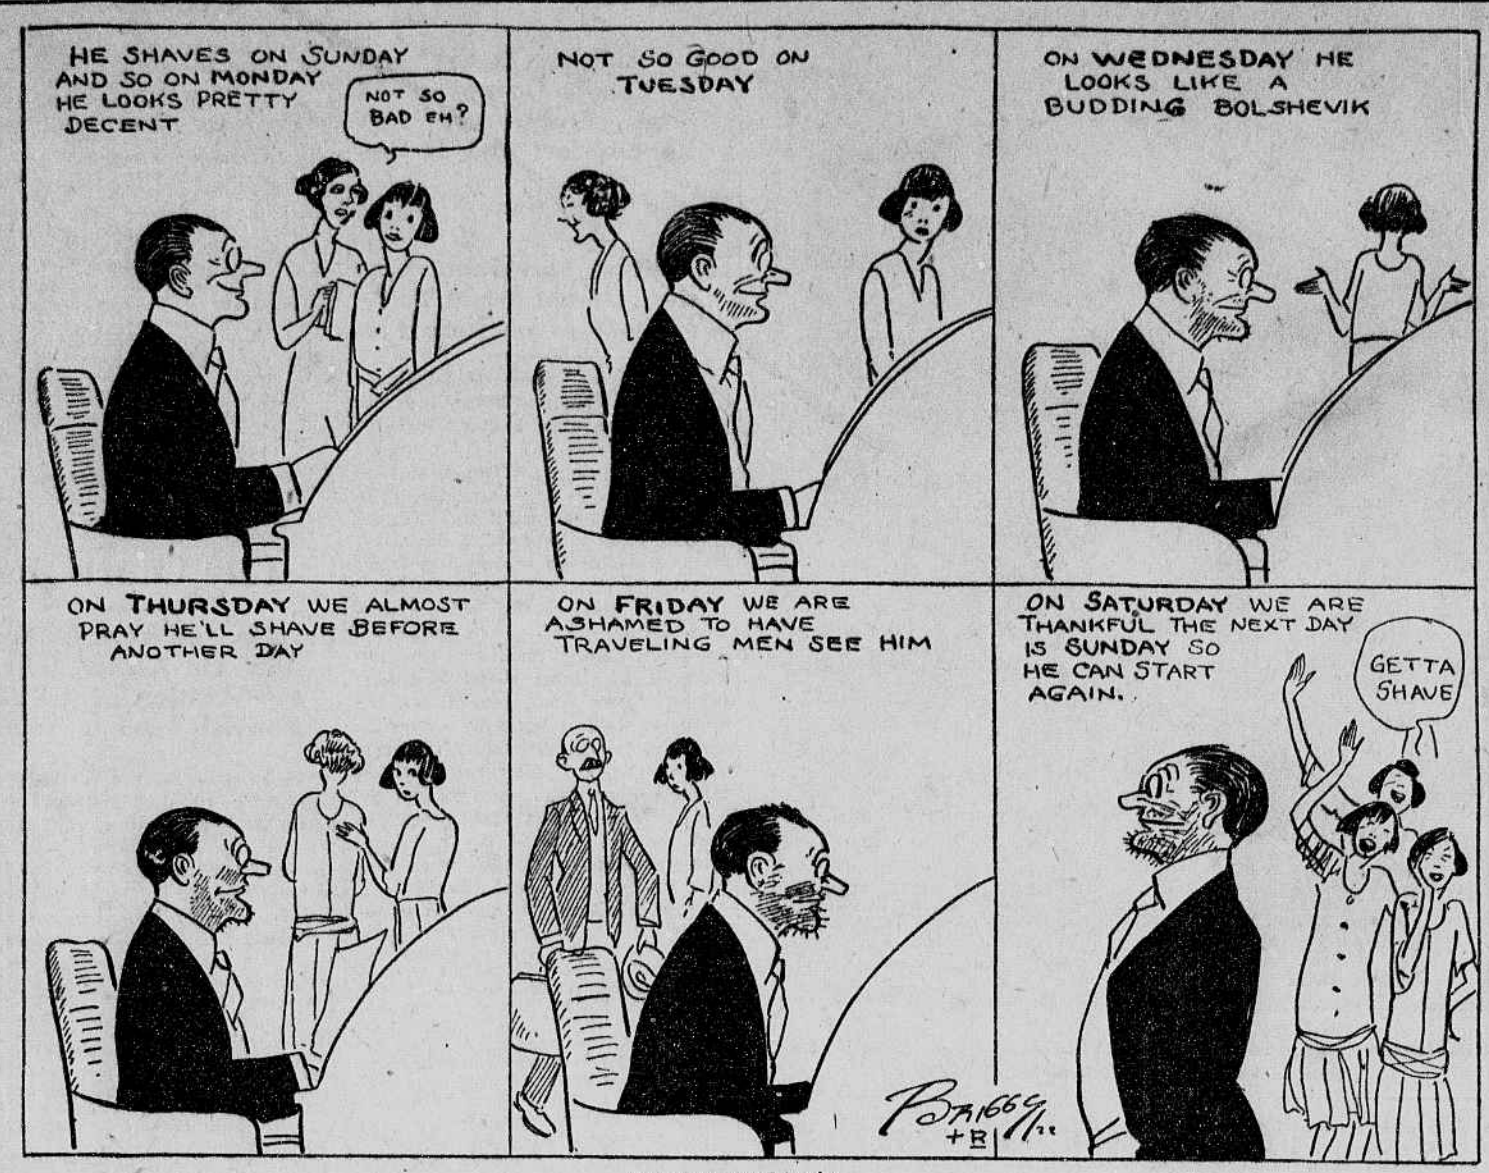

Arthur Nehf, George Kelly and Irish Meusel are the Giants who will make the Japan trip. They will be accompanied by three of their late adversaries in the persons of Waite Hoyt, Bullet Joe Bush and Fred Hoffman. All three expect to be back in this country in the early part of next year.

Carl Mays and his battery mate, Wally Schang, will journey to company and come to a full halt whenever they see a promising barn. Norman MacPhee has been lured in accompanying them, but it is suspected that "Silent Mac" is going for the money. The McGraw regulars, including Fabian, Schenck and Roth received $500 each. Eddie Bennett will have $300 to spend on lollipops this winter, and the odd man left over, amounting to more than $100, was voted to Mack Roth.

As for Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel, it seems that someone has guaranteed them $1,000 each per game to be played in Iowa, Nebraska and points West. The idea seems to be to get them somewhere beyond reach of the teehoes from the recent strife at the Polo Grounds. Under the circumstances this seems reasonable. Whitey Witt is going to play a few games back up in the hills near his home at Winchester, Mass. Even George Murray, the Rochester Bearcat, was afraid he was missing a trick and rushed over to get permission from Judge Landis to perform a barn or cattle shed he might find in his wanderings. George had nothing particular in sight, but it is a long way to North Carolina and so telling what one might see on the journey.

In view of the extended list, it might be suspected that none of the

Fordham Has Light Practice Following Game With Rutgers

Tired and a bit bruised from their strenuous efforts in their battle with Rutgers on Saturday, the Fordham varsity players had a well-deserved rest yesterday afternoon. Frank Gargan, Maroon head-coach, sent the wearied regulars through an extremely short signal drill, which work composed the afternoon's program.

Gargan was loath to let the afternoon slide by with no real work being done, for the Boston College-Fordham game is but two days off, as it will be played on Columbus Day, at Braves' Field, Boston. He intends to have a scrimmage this afternoon, but to-morrow he will be only able to have a very short work-out for the team leaves for Boston on a late afternoon train.

The line-up of the Maroon team as it will take to the gridiron against Boston College will probably differ from the team that faced Rutgers on Saturday. Jim McGeough, quarterback and Bill Woerner, halfback, both of whom did so well when sent in as substitutes against the Scarlet, will undoubtedly be given regular assignments in the backfield, while Ryan, tackle, and Smead, guard, will interchange their positions along the line.

Of these changes, Gargan considers the switch of Ryan and Smead the most important. Gargan was not entirely satisfied with Ryan's play at tackle against Rutgers and feels that at one end of the grid, positions the Maroon lineman will fare better.

Servatius and McGill Win at 18.2 Billiards

Louis A. Servatius and Edward G. McGill were the winners yesterday in the two matches played at 18.2 ball on the tables of the Recreation Billiard Academy, of Brooklyn, in the Interborough Class C championship tourney. Servatius defeated George Steinberg by a total of 150 to 81 in the afternoon game, while McGill won over J. J. Tooley by a score of 150 to 111 in the evening session. This afternoon George Spear will meet L. J. Steinberger and in the evening game Gus Gardner will play J. H. Clemens.

Trot Races Called Off

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 9.—Grand Circuit races scheduled here to-day were called off on account of unfavorable weather conditions.

Why Not Organize a Tennis Club Exclusively for Women?

By Fred Hawthorne.

About a year ago, when Miss Marion Hollins, then national golf champion, announced that some of the leading women golfers of the East had founded a golf club, the membership of which was to be confined exclusively to persons of the feminine sex, the statement was hailed on all sides with due acclaim. It was high time, seemed to be the consensus of opinion, that the women had a club and a links of their own, where men would be eligible to play only by invitation.

The ever-growing number of women golfers in this country has made such an innovation necessary; there should be at least half a dozen women's golf clubs here in the East, but the prohibitive cost of land makes this virtually impossible.

Without in any way desiring to appear as Joshua to lead the women tennis players out of the wilderness of scant opportunities for playing at the men's clubs, I don't see why a move is not made to start the membership of which is to be confined solely to women. The need is fully as great as in the case of the golfers, and the cost would be decidedly less.

The SPORTLIGHT by Grantland Rice

Two stout-hearted machines this coming Saturday are to travel well over a thousand miles each to test the prowess of two of the strongest teams in the East. And of the four teams involved, by a quaint coincidence, three are coached by Yale men. Iowa, from beyond the Middle West, is coming 1,500 miles laterally to tackle Yale, and Auburn, from the southern part of Alabama, is moving 1,800 miles longitudinally to exchange football art with West Point. Iowa and Yale are coached by the Jones brothers, of Yale, and Auburn is under the guidance of Mike Donahue, another Yale product of twenty years ago.

The Double Intersectional

We have here the two-pley intersectional test, with both West and South tossed in against the East.

Certainly no two teams upon the same week-end have covered a greater amount of United States territory than Iowa and Auburn will cover in their next engagements.

And while this is taking place, Michigan will leave Ann Arbor for Nashville, where the Wolverines dedicate the big Vanderbilt stadium, now the finest athletic structure in the South.

Big Family Day

All in all, Saturday will be the largest family day of the football year.

While brother Howard Jones is meeting brother Tad Jones at New Haven, brother-in-law Fielding H. Yost will be engaging brother-in-law Daniel McGugin at Nashville.

Father Charlie Moran's Centre College team annihilated Son Tom Moran's team a short while back, showing the intimate zone which the fall pastime is reaching.

For that matter both Yale and West Point will be in for a tidy bit of intimate battling before they emerge with victories. Iowa isn't the Iowa of a year ago with the two Devines, Slater and Belding missing. But Iowa will be strong enough to make Yale play a lot of football, and Captain Locke at fullback will give the Yale line a busy afternoon.

In the same way Auburn, sometimes known as Alabama Polytechnic, is coming to West Point with a big, seasoned team that will be stronger defensively than on attack.

Gridiron Etchings

No. 8—Syracuse

Syracuse for the last two years has had a habit of bucking up in some game without presenting any warning.

Last fall she collapsed against Pittsburgh and was beaten 35 to 0 when the odds looked to be her way.

But "Chick" Meehan, one of the youngest of the college coaches, is looking for no such crash this fall.

His prospects are bright for a strong team, and he will need a strong team with the schedule he faces, which for the remainder of the way includes Brown, Pittsburgh, Penn State, Nebraska, McGill and Colgate.

Meehan is banking heavily upon his backfield rowing, where he has Anderson, Kellogg, Trout, McBride, Zimmerman, Bowman, Simmons and Frugnone, enough material for two good backfields.

He believes he has a star quarterback in Simmons, who is fast, brainy and strong.

Landis Sanctions Barnstorming Trip Of Ruth and Meusel

Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel, Yankee outfielders, who were suspended for the early part of the last season for engaging in an unsanctioned barnstorming trip, will leave to-morrow on an exhibition tour of the Middle West—this time with the official permission of baseball's highest official, Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Ruth, in announcing to-night the proposed trip, said he and Meusel had received unofficial sanction for the trip from Commissioner Landis, who handed out the suspensions to them last year after the two sluggers, together with Pitcher Bill Pierce, defied the Commissioner's ultimatum that they abandon the expedition.

"Commissioner Landis treated us very fairly," Ruth declared. "Last year's affair had nothing to do with this exhibition tour, and we are not members of the Yankees. They will start exhibitions in November and continue through October and November as long as the weather permits."

Under the new rule affecting barnstorming by world's series players, they can engage in post-season exhibition providing no more than three members of a championship club play together on a team.

Sisler and Frisch to Play at Bronx Field

Thursday at Bronx Field the Bronx Giants will play George Sisler's team, composed of the following league stars: Shorten and Bronkie, of the Browns; Menosky, Ruel, McDonald, Pierce and Karr, of the Red Sox; Connelly, Cleveland, and Galloway, of the Athletics.

On Sunday the Bronx Giants will have Frank Frisch Day. The hero of the world's series will bring an all-star club to play the Bronx Giants.

Walter Hoover Wants to Row Legion Oarsmen

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—"I am on my way and I challenge the entire American Legion."

This message was received to-day at American Legion convention headquarters from Walter Hoover, Duluth, Minn., who last spring went over to London and won the famous diamond sculls from the British, and thereby made himself world's champion single scull oarsman of the world.

Hoover will give an exhibition of his skill in the water, rowing for the American Legion, during the convention, and should none of the Legionnaires care to challenge him for a race.

Yost Respects Buckeyes

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 9.—Returning from Columbus, where he watched the Ohio State eleven in action Saturday, Coach Yost, of the Michigan squad, to-day began pointing the Wolverines for their tussle two weeks hence with the Buckeyes. It will be the big game of the season for Michigan and the mentor voiced genuine respect for Ohio's ability.

Pitches Shut-Out Ball

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 9.—Eddie Rummel, pitching ace for the Philadelphia Americans, had to shut out the Johnstown Independents to-day to win an exhibition game for the American League "all-star" barnstormers. Rummel won his own game in the fifth with a sacrifice which scored Placido.

Huggins Will Manage Yankees Next Season, Says Club Owner

"He Brought Home the Only Two Pennants New York Americans Ever Won and We Are For Him," Is Colonel Ruppert's Answer to Critics

By John Kieran

No sooner had the Yankees fallen flat before the rushing attack of the Giants, than the Society for the Suppression of Miller Huggins went into executive session and issued a series of startling bulletins. Others stated that Huggins would resign, by request or otherwise. Others contained the information that the midget manager would be fired by his employers as soon as they laid hands on him, and that it would be better for Huggins if he were caught in the clubhouse, as he could be thrown only into the yard, while the Yankee office at Forty-second Street is on the second floor and the Huggins apartment is still higher up.

Yesterday afternoon the last bulletin of the society was handed out to a pliant public. Huggins was to be hung, drawn and quartered, his household goods sold at auction, his battle plans for the world's series printed in a joke book and his brain presented to an animal museum for dusting with a vacuum cleaner. Beyond that the bulletin was indefinite and contained no details.

When the matter was brought to the attention of Colonel Jacob Ruppert he spoke only a few choice words. "The manager of the New York Yankees next year will be Miller J. Huggins and nobody else. Maybe these people that are firing him and hiring others know more about it than I do, but that's my last word. Wouldn't it be nice of us to fire a manager who had brought home the only two pennants any American League team won in this city? This talk is ridiculous. We are with Huggins, first, last and all the time."

That should settle the matter, and probably the hyenas of hate against the lightweight leader will die down for a while. No one will pick a new manager for the Yanks for several days at least. The duty Miller is in very poor shape physically. He was at the Yankee offices yesterday wearing a coin to see whether he would be operated upon in this city immediately or wait until he got home to Cincinnati. He just laughed at the rumors of his release. He stated that his contract was just a yearly affair, but that he was not worrying about the matter at all.

All the talk about what happened in the clubhouse after the deciding game is wide of the mark. It was more than hinted that Joe Bush was apologetic and that harsh words were exchanged between the manager and his players. The only words exchanged between Huggins and Bush were expressions of apology by the star hurler for his gesture on the field in the heat of battle. Joe said he might have done with Huggins on the wisdom of the point, but that he was dead wrong in giving the secret away to the people. Huggins just patted Joe on the head and told him that as manager he took responsibility and was ready to shoulder the blame for the defeat.

Three Giants and Three Yankees on Trip to Orient

At least three members of the New York Giants, world's champions, and three of the New York Yankees, the losing team in the series that ended Sunday, will participate in the tour of the Orient that has been organized to further the growth of baseball beyond the Pacific.

While the official roster has not yet been completed for the party that will gather at Chicago next Sunday to sail from Vancouver in time to reach Yokohama October 31, it is known that George Kelly, whose hit won the deciding game for the Giants; Arthur Nehf and Emil Meusel, the slugging outfielder, will go from the Giant squad.

From the Yankees will be Joe Bush, leading pitcher of the American League; Waite Hoyt and Fred Hoffman, second string catcher.

Among other players billed to go are Tom Griffith, of the Brooklyn club; Joe Sewell and Stephenson, of the Cleveland Indians; Amos Strunk and Fels of the Chicago White Sox, and John Lavan, St. Louis Cardinals.

The men are selected not only for ability but for their gentlemanly conduct on and off the ball field, and their selection is subject to the approval of Commissioner Landis. Games will be played in Tokyo, Osaka and Kobe, Japan; Korea, Manchuria, China, Philippines and Hawaii, returning to the United States early in February.

Rutgers Quintet Leader Fails to See the Joke

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 9.—The Rutgers basketball manager, Irving Kibbe, to-day received a proposal from the University of Pennsylvania for a game this winter between the Penn junior varsity, or second team, and the Rutgers first quintet. Kibbe failed to see the joke. A reply was forwarded the Quakers suggesting they would do well to scan the pages of the official basketball guide. Last year Rutgers lost only two games and won from, among others, Columbia, Lafayette, Crescent A. C., New York University, Lehigh, Penn State, Swarthmore and Georgetown. Eddie Benson, the sensational forward who was chosen on most of the All-Eastern fives, is this year's captain.
